Keep track of developments in the European institutions and public affairs with our movers and shakers column.

Today’s Movers & Shakers are about: Two MEPS bid farewell to the Parliament, France's National Rally throw its weight behind Salvini's new alliance, the latest appointments in the European Commission and public affairs, the new Estonian government, Brexit and more!

European Parliament

The Parliament has found one of its MEPs, Maria João RODRIGUES (S&D, PT), guilty of ‘psychological harassment’ toward her accredited assistant and will impose a ‘penalty’ on her. There have been nine separate allegations against RODRIGUES, including attempts to reduce working hours and salary of a staff member after maternity leave.
Outgoing
Linda MCAVAN (S&D, UK) has left the European Parliament and confirmed that she will not be seeking re-election in May.

Linnéa ENGSTRÖM (Greens/EFA, SE) also bids farewell as she becomes the Program Director for the Scandinavia and Baltic Sea Region at the Marine Stewardship Council (MSC).

European Elections
Marine LE PEN’s National Rally (ENF, FR) has formally thrown its weight behind the new pan-European right-wing bloc – the European Alliance of People and Nations. So far, the group has garnered support from nationalist parties in Austria, Germany, Denmark, Estonia and Finland. The party came to fruition earlier in the month under the leadership of Italy’s interior minister and deputy prime minister, Matteo SALVINI to strengthen and unite disparate right-wing parties ahead of the elections. SALVINI has convened a large meeting to demonstrate the ‘full strength of the alliance’ in the Piazza Duomo in Milan for 18 May.

National News

Brexit

Cross-party talks between Theresa MAY’s government and Labour’s Jeremy CORBYN on Brexit are on the brink of collapse after Labour said that the prime minister has offered no concessions on their key demands, including a permanent EU-UK customs union. MAY is believed to be planning to hold another vote on her Brexit deal within the next ten days in a final bid to avoid European elections in May.

Bulgaria

Delyan PEEVSKI will contest the European elections on the list of the Movement for Rights and Freedoms (ALDE). Media mogul PEEVSKI is a highly controversial figure in Bulgaria, due to his control of large proportion of the country’s media.

Estonia

Jüri RATAS’ second government was formally appointed by President Kersti KALJULAID on Wednesday. Four ministries will be held by the Centre Party (ALDE), three by the Conservative People’s Party and two by Pro Patria (EPP). The new Ministers will officially give their oaths of office before the Estonian Parliament next week.

A total of nine alternate members will be sworn in as MPs on Monday to replace the new ministers. Urmas ESPENBERG, Kai RIMMEL and Arno SILD will be sworn in as MPs in the Conservative People’s Party of Estonia parliamentary group. Andrei KOROBEINIK, Oudekki LOONE, Natalia MALLEUS and Peeter RAHNEL will step in as MPs in the Centre Party parliamentary group. Mart NUTT and Heiki HEPNER, meanwhile, will be sworn in as MPs in the Pro Patria group.

Romania

President Klaus IOHANNIS has rejected the resignations submitted by three ministers, including Minister for Justice, Tudorel TOADER, EU Funds Minister Rovana PLUMB and Diaspora Minister Natalia INTOTERO. IOHANNIS has made it clear that he will not accept the resignations before knowing who will replace the ministers. Last week, the ruling Social Democratic Party withdrew their support for TOADER, who has gradually lost support within the cabinet for refusing to issues proposed changes to the penal code as emergency decrees. Eugen NICOLICEA had been proposed as his replacement.

Prime minister Viorica DANCILA has sent the president proposals for interim ministers for the three portfolios, namely Ana BIRCHALL for the Justice Ministry, finance minister Eugen TEODOROVICI for the EU Funds Ministry, and business environment minister Radu-Stefan OPREA for the Diaspora Ministry.
